From Village to Village

Tourists come from all over the world to visit northern India. They visit the Taj Mahal and the Golden Temple in Amritsar. Some people go to the Himalayas. They stay in villages and learn about life there. In this area, it is hard for women to work in tourism. People think it is not good work for women. One company, Village Ways, tries to help women earn money from tourism.

The women here walk from village to village all the time. They take food to family members in another village. They also bring wood and other things home from other villages. Village Ways pays the women to also take luggage. They carry bags from one village to the next.

The women like the work and they make some money. They meet tourists and learn about the world. The money helps them buy food for their families. This way, tourism helps everyone in the area.
