

Pre-Intermediate – Understand Your Learning Style

A. Matilda is a very friendly girl. She likes languages, and she loves music. She plays a musical instrument very well. She can make strange voices and make all her friends laugh. She often speaks in class, and she does really good in presentations. She isn't shy. She's clever, but she doesn't read much. She doesn't like revising for exams on her own. She wants a friend to come by and talk to her about the work. She likes to move around when she is revising, and she's very good at PE. She's got an important school project to do.

How can you help her?

B. Martin is a very sporty boy. He likes models, and he often makes or builds things. He doesn't like doing homework or revising for exams. He usually does his homework with very loud music playing in the background. In class, he often taps his foot or plays with his pencil case. He sings a lot, too. The teacher gets annoyed, but when he stops, he looks very sleepy. He loves science. He likes the science lab and the experiments. It's his school's exam period and he's having trouble memorizing some of the information that will come in the exams.

How can you help him?

C. Monique is very clever. She's good at spelling, and she draws clever shapes and pictures. She uses them to remember her work because, in the lesson, she doesn't always understand the things she reads or hears. She always forgets names but never faces. She loves fashion and wears beautiful clothes. She also chooses beautiful colours. She doesn't read books, but she likes to listen to audio books. She's got a new program for her computer, but she can't understand the instructions.

How can you help her?

A. Matilda is a very friendly girl. She likes languages, and she loves music. She plays a musical instrument very well. She can make strange voices and make all her friends laugh. She often speaks in class, and she does really good in presentations. She isn't shy. She's clever, but she doesn't read much. She doesn't like revising for exams on her own. She wants a friend to come by and talk to her about the work. She likes to move around when she is revising, and she's very good at PE. She's got an important school project to do.

How can you help her?

B. Martin is a very sporty boy. He likes models, and he often makes or builds things. He doesn't like doing homework or revising for exams. He usually does his homework with very loud music playing in the background. In class, he often taps his foot or plays with his pencil case. He sings a lot, too. The teacher gets annoyed, but when he stops, he looks very sleepy. He loves science. He likes the science lab and the experiments. It's his school's exam period and he's having trouble memorizing some of the information that will come in the exams.

How can you help him?

C. Monique is very clever. She's good at spelling, and she draws clever shapes and pictures. She uses them to remember her work because, in the lesson, she doesn't always understand the things she reads or hears. She always forgets names but never faces. She loves fashion and wears beautiful clothes. She also chooses beautiful colours. She doesn't read books, but she likes to listen to audio books. She's got a new program for her computer, but she can't understand the instructions.

How can you help her?

Reflection Point

Your learning style is the way you learn new things. If you know and understand your learning style, you can use it to learn and understand things faster and better.